Free virtual summer programs available at Palo Alto College

Alamo Colleges District–Palo Alto College is offering a variety of free virtual summer program opportunities for youth ages 5 to 18 years featuring hands-on projects from various academic disciplines.

This year's camps will be offered remotely as a precautionary measure due to the current public health situation. All sessions are age-specific, and they will be held live via video conferencing or can be streamed at the viewer's leisure.

Themes for this year's summer programs include:

Youth (Kindergarten-5th Grade)

- Kids Camp
- Library STEM Camp
- Code for the Future camps

Middle School (6th-8th Grade)

- STEM Summer Experience
- Code for the Future camps
- Theatre camps

High School (9th-12th Grade)

- STEM Summer Experience

Some camps require registration; any materials needed for the camp activities will be provided free-of-charge to registrants through contactless curbside pickup at Palo Alto College. For more information and to register, visit alamo.edu/pac/summer-programs.
